Rockefeller out of V-P picture

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller declared today that he does not want to be President Ford's running mate in 1976, stepping aside in a surprise move that dramatically altered the Republican campaign outlook.

Rockefeller did so without explanation, saying he took the job "to help restore national unity and confidence" after Watergate, and doesn't want the job again.

"After much thought, I have decided ... that I do not wish my name to enter into your consideration for the upcoming Republican vice presidential nominee," Rockefeller said in a letter he carried personally to the President's office.

The two men then met for about 20 minutes.

There was no word on what Rockefeller himself plans to do next — and there was some speculation that it might be to run against Ford for the presidency itself.

It is an office Rockefeller, 67, has sought three times before.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen said he did not feel "anything like that" was in prospect.

There was no immediate word from Rockefeller or his aides on what the vice president is going to do. A spokesman said only that he knew nothing of any potential presidential challenge.

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, who is due to announce in about two weeks that he will run against Ford next year, said he was astounded at Rockefeller's move.

Reagan, in Boca Raton, Fla., said he was not interested in the vice presidency himself. He acknowledged that Rockefeller's announcement could make his conservative challenge to Ford more difficult, for it removes a man who had been a nettlesome issue to some on the Republican right.

A Reagan campaign strategist said the Rockefeller decision would not affect Reagan's campaign plans. "We are going ahead with our campaign," he said.

A Rockefeller aide said the vice president had discussed his decision with Ford in advance. The aide said he doubted the letter made public today came as a surprise to the President.

The aide declined to speculate as to whether Rockefeller made his move believing it would help Ford's election prospects next year.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen said Ford and Rockefeller had discussed the matter during the past few days and "are in complete understanding."

He said Rockefeller took the action at his own initiative, and that Ford had not asked him to step aside.

The Rockefeller announcement came a day after disclosure of a major shakeup in the top ranks of the administration.

Ford scheduled a nationally televised news conference at 7:30 p.m. EST, with Rockefeller and the ouster of Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger and CIA Director William Colby certain to be the dominant topics.

Rockefeller was nominated for the vice presidency on Aug. 20, 1973, and sworn in, after lengthy congressional confirmation hearings, on Dec. 19.

Rockefeller's announcement was relayed by his press secretary Hugh Morrow, who said the vice president was delivering the letter to Ford today.

Rockefeller's decision means the Republican vice presidential spot will be an object of maneuver and potential political bargaining. It also means that if Ford does win the GOP nomination, he will be in a position to choose a new Republican face who would instantly become a party power for future campaigns.

There had been no advance signal that Rockefeller was considering the step he took today, but there had been public evidence of disagreement between the President and vice president over administration handling of the financial crisis besetting New York City.

Rockefeller, four times elected governor of New York, has advocated federal help for the city to avoid bankruptcy, but Ford has adamantly opposed any loan guarantees to back the city's debts.

Rockefeller, now 67, resigned as governor of New York in December of 1973, in what was then considered a move to position himself for a final presidential bid of his own in 1976.

But that was precluded when Richard M. Nixon resigned and Ford chose Rockefeller to become vice president. Rockefeller was nominated in September, 1973, and took the oath of office in December.

At the time Ford chose Rockefeller for the vice presidency, other Republicans considered prime prospects for the appointment included Sen. Howard H. Baker of Tennessee, George Bush, now U.S. representative in Peking, and Donald Rumsfeld, now a top assistant to Ford.

In launching his own 1976 campaign, Ford has said he would tell the Republican National Convention next summer that he wanted Rockefeller nominated for the vice presidency.

A White House spokesman said Rockefeller had talked to the President about his decision over the past few days, "at the initiative of the vice president."

Press secretary Ron Nessen said Ford had "absolutely not" asked Rockefeller to step aside.

Howard H. Callaway, Ford's campaign manager, has said Rockefeller would represent a problem for the President in the South and among conservatives. He also has declared that his assignment was to get Ford nominated, not to help Rockefeller.

In his letter to the President, Rockefeller said: "I have made clear to you and the public that I was not a candidate for the vice presidency, that no one realistically can be such, and that the choice of a vice presidential running mate is and must be up to the presidential candidate to recommend to a national party convention."

"After much thought, I have decided further that I do not wish my name to enter into your consideration for the upcoming Republican vice presidential nominee," Rockefeller said. "I wish you to know this now for your own planning."

Rumsfeld and Bush tapped by Ford in shakeup of administration brass

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford told congressional leaders today he plans to name White House Chief of Staff Donald Rumsfeld as secretary of defense and George Bush, now U.S. representative in Peking, as head of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Word on those appointments came even before Ford formally announced the ouster of Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger and CIA Director William Colby.

Pentagon sources, reporting this shakeup in the top echelons of the administration, also said that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will relinquish his second job as chairman of the National Security Council.

A Republican source said Air Force Lt. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, Kissinger's deputy and protege, will replace the secretary of state as NSC chairman. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Ford called him at mid-morning with word of the Bush and Rumsfeld appointments. He said the President denied that Kissinger, who has been at odds with Schlesinger, was behind the shakeup.

"The President told me what he did he was doing on his own," Mansfield said. "He said that for some time he had wanted to set up his own team."

Mansfield also said he considers Rumsfeld and Bush to be excellent choices.

Meanwhile, it was reported that Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott is a prime prospect to succeed Bush as the U.S. emissary to China. Scott said he had not been offered the job.

GEORGE BUSH

JAMES SCHLESINGER

Scott faces a difficult race for re-election in Pennsylvania next year, is a noted collector and historian of Chinese art, and has made no secret of his interest in some day representing the United States in China.

Amid the administration upheaval, which also included an announcement by Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller that he will not be a candidate for that job next year, a White House party that was about to fly to China was suddenly told not to take off from Andrews Air Force Base, Md.

More than 40 aides and technicians were ready to go when the White House said their trip was postponed, probably until later in the week. Ford is scheduled to go to China late in November.

Ford called a nationally televised news conference for tonight. The administration shakeup and Rockefeller's announcement were expected to be prime topics.

Members of the Senate Intelligence Committee reacted sharply to the report of Colby's ouster, linking it directly to his willingness to cooperate with its investigation.

Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, termed it part of "a whole pattern developing of trying to thwart the committee's work."

"It is clear that...on a broad front there is no question in my mind but that concealment is the order of the day," Church said.

Primary defeats won't hurt Ford, say aides

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's campaign strategists contend he can absorb defeats in two of the first three presidential primary elections of 1976 and still beat Ronald Reagan for the Republican nomination.

They say they do not expect Ford to lose in New Hampshire on Feb. 24 or in Florida on March 9, but that it won't be politically fatal if he does. There is concern and some pessimism in the Ford camp about those two states because Reagan has special advantages in both.

In part, these assessments may be an exercise in campaign gamesmanship, since it is to a candidate's advantage to start with low expectations and exceed them rather than to promote optimistic forecasts that don't pan out.

As the incumbent, although by appointment rather than election, Ford goes into the campaign as the favorite, and any defeat by Reagan will therefore be magnified.

But Ford's managers say the race shouldn't be read that way because the President has not been the electoral route before. They also say that as a challenger, Reagan can pick his spots and run in states where he is strongest, while the Ford campaign will be active in every state, spreading its resources thinner.

Reagan has not yet declared his presidential candidacy yet, but sources familiar with his plans say he will do so in Washington the week of Nov. 17.

Stuart Spencer, director of political operations for the President Ford Committee, said he is satisfied with progress in organizing for the President in New Hampshire and Florida, with chairmen and campaign professionals at work and a direct-mail appeal for Republican support due to go out in November.

Howard H. "Bo" Callaway, the Ford campaign manager, has said he is confident the President will win both primaries.

Spencer said Reagan's advantages in the two states include the support of New Hampshire Gov. Meldrim Thomson and the Manchester Union-Leader, that state's largest newspaper, and the strength of GOP conservatives in Florida.

"If we can beat him in New Hampshire and Florida, I think he's dead," Spencer said. "If he beats us in New Hampshire and Florida, I don't think we're dead. It's just a long, hard winter — or spring."

He acknowledged that he can't measure the psychological impact the Ford campaign would suffer if Reagan won in those early tests.

Spencer also said the President's forces are confident they can beat Reagan in the Massachusetts primary on March 2, in Illinois on March 16 — although some other Republicans say Ford could have trouble there — and will win in Wisconsin and New York on April 6.

Along with the questions of strategy, there is the problem of internal discord at the Ford campaign committee. It surfaced again with the resignation of David Packard as finance chairman, following the departure of Lee Nunn as director of operations.

In both cases, the resignations stemmed from differences with Callaway. A spokesman said Ford still has total confidence in Callaway's management. And a campaign official said that with those resignations, the in-house problems at Ford headquarters should be over.

Egypt may get nuclear reactors in deal with U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Egypt are polishing an agreement which could send Egyptian President Anwar Sadat home with a promise of American nuclear reactors.

Announcement of an agreement may come Wednesday as Sadat concludes a 10-day visit to the United States with a speech to Congress.

President Ford held two hour-long meetings Sunday with Sadat in Jacksonville, Fla., continuing discussions started in Washington last week. White House officials declined to elaborate on the discussions but said a communique might be issued after the two leaders hold a final meeting Wednesday morning at the White House.

The talks in Jacksonville were held in plush private residences and Ford's trip there was considered an extraordinary gesture to Sadat, who was resting for four days in Florida as the guest of an oil company executive.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who also attended, told newsmen before the meeting Sunday that once agreement is reached, the United States will provide nuclear reactors to Egypt under "the most exhaustive system of safeguards in existence in any country."

He said the system specifically prohibits using the reactors to produce even a peaceful nuclear explosion.

Egypt has been willing to sign an agreement permitting U.S. inspection of the reactors if Israel would sign a similar pact.

The Israelis have been reluctant to do so because they may have reactors of their own which they do not want Americans to inspect.

The American position now, officials say, is that only U.S.-furnished reactors and fuel should be subject to inspection. Kissinger said the agreement being worked out with Egypt has been discussed at every stage with the Israelis.

U.S. to pull out of U.N. organization

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will notify the International Labor Organization on Thursday that it intends to withdraw from the 124-member U.N. body, U.S. officials confirmed today.

It will be the first such U.S. pullout from a United Nations group.

The announcement, initially to have been made today, will come from Labor Secretary John T. Dunlop and is based on AFL-CIO withdrawal from the tripartite U.S. delegation, which also has government and employer representatives.

The reported reason for the AFL-CIO objection is principally ILO acceptance last June of an observer from the Palestine Liberation Organization, the umbrella group for terrorists and other anti-Israeli forces.

Notification is being sent to ILO headquarters in Geneva. U.S. officials stressed that it will take two years to become effective and that in that period they are hoping the dispute can be resolved.

In recent years the United States has contributed about a quarter of the $50 million budget.

Congress has acted to cut off funds for the ILO and the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) because of their virtual ostracizing of Israel.

Meanwhile, Israeli officials said Israel will remain in the ILO since its withdrawal would mean its seat would be given to the PLO.

Under ILO statutes, members have to give two years notice.

Arson suspected in farm fire

OREGON — Ogle County Sheriff's deputies are working on a theory that a farm fire was preceded by a break-in. The suspected arson and burglary occurred early Saturday east of Woosung at the Robin Lahman and Bill McEniry farm.

Deputies said the home, being remodeled, was entered and a portable television set and several small appliances taken, before the fire began.

The fire erupted in a small room, off the kitchen, and spread to a nearby barn and shed. All the buildings were abandoned at the time.

Sheriff's deputies are continuing their investigation with the state fire marshal.

Truck driver is injured

A Franklin Grove man was seriously injured in a two-vehicle crash at the intersection of U.S. 52 and U.S. 30 at 11:30 a.m. Saturday. Lee W. Heckert, 66, was driving a pickup truck west on U.S. 30 when it was struck broadside at the intersection by a flatbed truck being driven north by Randy Wittenauer, 22, Amboy. Heckert was taken to KSB Hospital, Dixon, by the Amboy Fire Protection District rescue squad. He was later taken to St. Anthony Hospital, Rockford. Lee County Sheriff's deputies issued a ticket to Heckert for disobeying a stop sign. (Telegraph Photo)

Dr. Walter A. Reed honored

By HENRY J. TAYLOR
CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va.—The University of Virginia is honoring Dr. Walter Reed, its own distinguished alumnus; this great man of yellow fever fame who takes his place everlastingly in the medical annals of the world.

Dr. Reed has been honored here before, of course. But in honoring him again the University of Virginia again honors itself.

Virginia-born—Belroi, Sept. 13, 1851—Dr. Reed graduated from the Medical School in 1869 and in 1875 entered the U.S. Army Medical Corps. But he did not write a single medical paper until he was 41. Then, within 10 years, he wrote 30—at least 11 of which are universally regarded as medical classics.

Dr. Reed was a Medical Corps major at the outbreak of the Spanish-American War. His specialty was pathology and bacteriology. By the late 1890s he grew convinced that mosquitoes, and only mosquitoes, are yellow fever parasite distributors. His conviction boldly contradicted the recognized medical assumptions of the world.

The death rate from yellow fever—and the ghastly momentum of the awful plague—was tremendous. But animals are immune and Dr. Reed's proof required humans. He subjected himself.

Some of Dr. Reed's colleagues forfeited their lives. But finally he proved in 1900 that the aedes aegypti mosquito transmits yellow fever. He himself survived.

Yellow fever was eradicated first from Havana, then from Cuba, then from the Isthmus of Panama and finally from the civilized areas of the entire world.

Lord Bryce called the Panama Canal "the greatest liberty man ever took with nature." Its construction consumed seven years before we could put the first ship through on Aug. 15, 1914.

We had excavated 240 million cubic feet of earth and jungle. The cut's "slides" had to be reexcavated 30 times. We built the world's longest breakwaters out to sea, the world's largest dams and lifting locks and invented a cog-trac electric towing system good for two miles an hour.

The fatality record from diseases, however, was lower than that in the United States.

The Canal produced two American heroes. One, on the physical side, was Col. George W. Goethals of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. The other, on the human side, was the great Dr. Reed, who died five years before even the first bulldozing began.

The trip from New York to San Francisco is 14,500 land miles if you travel around the Horn; it is 5,789 through the Panama Canal. The Horn route was a three-month trip. You disembarked, if you wished, on the isthmus' Caribbean side, crossed it and transferred to a Pacific vessel. But the Isthmus was a death trap.

Its jungle was a furnace of heat, a caldron of quicksands, an inferno of snakes and a fountain spewing yellow fever and other diseases, savage Indians and swarms of highwaymen. Discarded baggage and clothing and no few bleached bones marked the early isthmus' terror trails.

As early as 1523, Charles V of Spain initiated the idea of a Panama Canal in detail. But without result. The idea was revived repeatedly in Europe through the centuries. The United States, however, did not become interested until the 1848 gold rush to California made the better route a necessity. But, again, without result.

In May, 1879, Suez Canal builder Ferdinand de Lesseps convened in Paris 135 International delegates to consider the isthmian potential. De Lesseps formed a company, but by 1889 not only this company but a second French enterprise with 200,000 investors and 3,600 men at work in the isthmus had gone bankrupt.

De Lesseps had solved the major engineering fundamentals, but the yellow fever scourge had to await the genius of Dr. Reed.

The U.S. Army Medical Corps, preceding the engineers, moved first into the isthmus death trap. The Medical Corps stayed there three years—the ghost of modest, dedicated Mr. Walter Reed looking over their shoulders.

In our day of antiheroes—what the British call "Chopping down the tall poppies"—honor the determinedly talented, honor the skillful, honor the brave.

Clarification

Due to an error in transmission, the M.S. Renaissance was mistakenly identified as a Soviet vessel in a recent (Oct. 15) Henry Taylor column. The M.S. Renaissance is, in fact, under French flag and registry, and is the flagship of the Paquet French Cruises. She was built in St. Nazaire, France, in 1956 and has been in continuous cruise service since then. The Renaissance had no involvement whatsoever in the activities described in the column.

Move against press endorsement

By DON OAKLEY

In a most unusual challenge to freedom of the press—or at any rate, a challenge to a practice the press has always felt free to engage in—a candidate for mayor of Willoughby, Ohio, about 20 miles east of Cleveland, has filed a complaint with the Ohio Elections Commission against the Willoughby News-Herald.

Candidate Christopher J. Acquila contends that newspaper endorsements of political candidates are a violation of an Ohio law that prohibits corporations from making contributions to candidates.

The News-Herald, with a circulation of about 29,000 violated the law, he charges, because it endorsed one of the candidates for mayor of the neighboring town of Eastlake.

"If the published endorsement by a corporate newspaper is not a thing of value given for the benefit of a political candidate, then what is it?" Acquila asked in the complaint, pointing out that newspaper endorsements are often reprinted by candidates as a way of self-advertisement.

Immediate reaction of the office of the Ohio Secretary of State was that the charge was "ridiculous."

Mayoral hopeful Acquila filed his complaint before the News-Herald endorsed his opponent, and Acquila is threatening to sue the paper.

U.S. economy on the go

NEW YORK (LENS)—In the past several weeks the outlook for the American economy has improved dramatically.

In early October, the predominant view of the country's top business economists, by a wide margin, was that the business recovery would be "sluggish" or at best "moderate." Indeed, fully a quarter of these seers were not even certain that the economic recession was yet over.

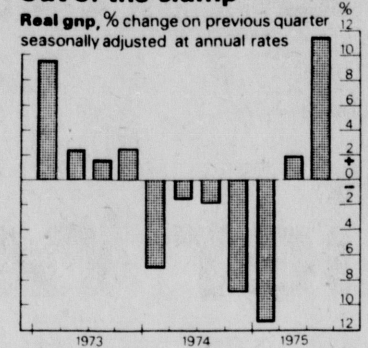

The third-quarter statistics on the gross national product indicate conclusively not only that the recession is indubitably over but also that the rebound in activity is very vigorous. The widespread nature of the advance suggests that the economy will go sailing briskly into 1976, carried along by the momentum now being generated by a full-scale business cycle advance.

The GNP rose a phenomenal $57 billion in annual rate in the third quarter to a shade under $1,500 billion, propelled by a marked slowing in the rate of liquidation of business stocks. Some of this large gain was attributable to inflation. But real output, adjusted for price increases, rose at an annual rate of 11 per cent—the fastest quarterly growth in 20 years.

Excluding changes in stocks real gains were not impressive—a rate of 4.4 per cent; according to preliminary estimates: not much different from growth in the second quarter. However, more stimulus is still to come from stocks as businessmen shift from liquidation to accumulation.

Over $20 billion of the third-quarter advance comes from a slower pace of liquidation; but business was still paring stocks by almost $10 billion annually. This is likely to dwindle to zero soon, boosting GNP by that amount.

Out of the slump

Moreover, final demand seems set to rise faster now. Generous tax reduction at midyear fattened consumers' pocketbooks and much of this windfall has yet to be spent. In addition, incomes are rising faster, bolstered by significant gains in employment. Since the trough of the recession, which apparently ended last spring, the total number of jobholders has risen by about 1.25 million. Personal income at the end of the third quarter was at an annual rate of $1,270 billion, some $26 billion above the June rate.

Factory output also increased impressively, rising 5 per cent during the three months. While the pace of recovery varied among the major industries, all of them participated in the upsurge.

As business moves from liquidation to accumulation of stocks, factory output will continue to advance though probably not so rapidly as the 1.9 per cent leap in September, the largest in 11 years. The thrust in manufacturing is coming most strongly in materials, buttressed by consumer products.

Output of business equipment has only lately joined the parade, as have construction products. The wonder is that either of them shows any new strength at all. Use of capacity in manufacturing has moved up only to 69 per cent, from its low point of 67 per cent in the second quarter compared with a high of 83 per cent in 1973, according to Federal Reserve Board estimates. This is hardly the kind of industrial pressure which breeds new plans for expansion.

Business construction is still dragging along the bottom, but housebuilding has recovered somewhat. From an abysmally low annual rate of less than 1 million in the first quarter, it has moved up to a rate of 1.25 million in the third. This is still small potatoes for an industry which reached a 2.5 million rate way back in early 1973.

Many economists doubt whether the speed of the recovery will be maintained. But the economy has been doing better than the economists. Almost none, not even the optimists, foresaw the speed with which the adjustment in stocks would be completed or the underlying strength existing in consumer markets.

There appears to be a reasonable chance that both business and consumers will get further tax reductions before the end of the year. This may put some added pressure on credit markets—and interest rates—later on. But for the present, with the Federal Reserve softening its restrictions on credit, all signals are go. The American economy is still in the early stage of a major cyclical upswing.

"Trust me!"

Computer replaces cloak, dagger

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—It is said of one former Central Intelligence Agency operative involved in Watergate that if you asked him to find out for you what was printed on the front page of the New York Times on a given date, he would not go down to the newsstand and buy a copy.

Rather he would perch himself on the 12th story of a building—complete with disguise—and with a precision, high-powered camera and attachments, covertly photograph the first page of the paper being read by some man or woman in the park below.

One problem the CIA lives with is that it was founded, in part, from remnants of the World War II Office of Strategic Services. The OSS had a nucleus of professionals. It also attracted an unusually large number of men and women who developed their ideas of intelligence from TV spy stories and paperback thrillers.

Unfortunately, numbers of these dilettantes had high Ivy League connections and some influence with the members of the law firm of Wild Bill Donovan, the head of OSS. Intelligence was an exciting game.

The CIA has, over the years, slowly whittled down the number and influence of these holdovers, and their disciples in the next generation. Even today, the job is not complete.

Most of the illegal activities exposed in recent studies for which the CIA stands accused are of little value—the esoteric poisons, the dart gun, the cloak and dagger spying. The payoff is not worth the cost.

The opening of mail, the shadowing of suspects, the listing of who attends what meetings and who parties with whom, the interviewing of neighbors—is normally a waste of time. The exception is when you have sufficient evidence to be virtually certain of guilt and know almost precisely what you are looking for.

Modern intelligence, whether by the CIA or the FBI is a highly technical profession, similar to advanced scientific research.

Some 90 per cent of usable information comes from open, unclassified sources.

By and large, spies are a vanishing breed in the American system of intelligence. The Russians, the Chinese, the North Koreans and other secretive societies still depend heavily on spies. The British have a sophisticated system.

But Americans now tend to concentrate their efforts on satellites, on complicated computer analysis of coded wireless messages picked up by sensitive listening devices and analysis by specialists of technical, scientific, commercial and other publications, from which piece-by-piece and item-by-item the capability and organization of the military and political forces of a potential enemy can be calculated.

The discovery and conviction—or eviction—of spies is a more complicated business. But again, this is accomplished in large part by what might be called sophisticated book-keeping. All spies make mistakes. All leave traces. Irregularities form patterns. Sweeping surveillance boggles the mind in cost and is usually self-defeating in that it warns the suspects the objective of modern intelligence is to spot the irregularities, investigate them in depth.

There has been a tendency to gather so much marginal information it has been impossible to sort the wheat from the chaff. The file drawers of our intelligence agencies are filled with material which no one has time to look at.

An upgrading of the professionalism of the CIA would do much to remove the legitimate discontent voiced both by the White House and by Congress.

Those who must cook for two face a number of built-in obstacles. Few recipes are written for twosomes and most supermarkets stock foods in quantities that mean constant leftovers. Although some supermarkets in New York City, for example, carry canned foods that offer individual servings and package such things as corn-on-the-cob, onions and potatoes in suburban areas tend to the larger size packages because their shoppers usually have children to feed. If you're a determined duo, though, ask your supermarket manager to repack or break up large quantity packages for your use.

Most will do this. Buy just three pounds of potatoes, two or three apples, chicken parts unless you plan to cook in quantity and freeze leftovers in individual portions for use later. Here are some recipes for a pair living alone or for a single person who wants to share with a guest. The Sweet and Sour Chicken is a mini-casserole using two drumsticks and thighs and rice. Serve with a mixed green salad. While cooking the chicken bake a Mini Molasses Banana Bread and also whip up some Nutty Drop Cookies. Store cookies between layers of waxed paper in a tin box or cookie canister.

SWEET AND SOUR CHICKEN

2 chicken drumsticks with thighs

1 tablespoon flour

1/4 teaspoon salt

Dash pepper

1 1/2 tablespoons salad oil

1 1/2 cups cooked rice

1/4 cup sliced onion

1 cup diced green pepper

1 cup canned chicken broth

1 tablespoon light molasses

1 1/2 teaspoons cider vinegar

1 tablespoon soy sauce

Dash pepper

1/4 teaspoon garlic powder

2 cup pineapple chunks and 2 tablespoons liquid from can

1 1/2 teaspoons cornstarch

Wash and pat chicken dry. Combine flour, salt and pepper. Coat chicken. In hot salad oil, saute chicken until browned. Remove pieces to a 1 1/2-quart casserole along with the rice. Pour off all but 1/2 tablespoon drippings and saute onion and green pepper until tender-crisp. Add chicken broth, molasses, vinegar, soy sauce, pepper and garlic powder; mix well. Add drained pineapple and heat until mixture simmers. Dissolve cornstarch in pineapple juice or syrup. Stir into sauce mixture and simmer until sauce thickens. Pour over chicken and rice. Cover and bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 45 minutes. Makes 2 servings with some left for second meal.

MINI MOLASSES BANANA BREAD

2-3rds cup sifted all-purpose flour

3/4 teaspoon baking powder

1/4 cup sugar

1 egg yolk

2 tablespoons light molasses

1/2 cup mashed ripe banana

Onto waxed paper, sift together flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. In medium bowl, cream shortening and sugar. Add egg yolk and beat well. Add molasses and mix thoroughly. Add mashed banana alternately with flour mixture, mixing just until blended after each addition. Pour batter into a well greased 20 ounce can with a circle of waxed paper in the bottom. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 45 to 59 minutes. Cool 5 minutes. Remove from can. Cool completely. Makes 1 loaf.

+Next time you make scrambled eggs, add the leftover egg white to them.

Vanilla Glaze (below)

Nuts for garnish (optional)

Onto waxed paper, sift together flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, cinnamon, allspice and nutmeg. In medium mixing bowl, cream butter and sugar. Add egg and beat well. Add molasses and stir until blended. Add flour mixture alternately with milk, mixing just until blended. Stir in chopped walnuts. Drop batter by teaspoon onto greased cookie sheet. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven for 8 to 9 minutes. Remove cookies and cool on wire rack. Spread about a teaspoon of glaze in center of each cookie. Garnish with a piece of nut, if desired. Makes 2 dozen cookies.

VANILLA GLAZE

Heat 1 tablespoon milk and 1 tablespoon butter or margarine until butter melts. Remove from heat, add 1/2 teaspoon vanilla and 1 cup sifted confectioners sugar; mix well.

Some view raising children as blessing, it's grief for others

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married for a year and are undecided as to whether or not we should have children. Perhaps your readers can be of some help to those of us who are asking ourselves this question.

Do people in their 50s, 60s and 70s regret not having had children when they were young? Are they lonesome? Or do they enjoy the freedom from the responsibilities that many parents and grandparents find burdensome?

I've heard some couples say they wish they had never had children—that their lives were beautiful until the kids came along and ruined everything.

Would you ask your readers to express their views and help us decide? We would especially like to hear from older people who do and do not have children. This is a case where we could learn from our elders.—Prospective Parents

Dear Pro: I can tell you right now you're going to get six of one and half a dozen of the other. It depends on who you want to listen to.

Some parents will tell you their children have brought them nothing but grief. Others will say their children have been life's greatest blessing.

Speaking for myself, my only child, a daughter, has enriched my life enormously. The experience of raising a child, watching her grow and develop into a mature woman (now the mother of three fine children), has added a dimension to my own life that is indescribable. I could not have been me had I been childless.

Dear Ann Landers: I think you goofed, Ann. I refer to your comments to the young bride whose husband chose his dog over her.

I would agree that in most cases the wife should be Number One. However, there are exceptions to everything and a close friend of mine was the perfect example.

This friend chose his wife instead of his dog when confronted with the same choice. He ended up losing his health and putting up with unbelievable antics of a lush who had a voice like a drill sergeant and treated him like dirt.

Had he chosen the dog, the worst he could have wound up with would have been a case of ticks or fleas and maybe a litter of puppies. Also, when he came home at night he would have been greeted by a friendly pet—who was sober.

I'm not implying that a dog can take the place of a wife. I am only saying some guys would be better off with a good dog than a bad woman.—O'J Philosopher

Dear O'J Phil: I'll go you one better. All guys would be better off with no woman than a bad one—and you can forget about the dog.

Dear Ann Landers: Please answer a simple question for me. I'm ashamed to ask anyone else and it is driving me crazy.

My husband is hooked on TV. He will watch anything. Even test patterns. The minute we finish supper he runs to the TV and there he sits—until he falls asleep. Sometimes I tiptoe over and turn the set off. The minute the set goes off he wakes up and yells, "Turn the set back on. I was enjoying the show."

Will you please tell me how a person who is sound asleep (and snoring yet) can tell whether a TV set is off or on?—Going Bonkers

Dear Bonk: A continuous sound can keep some people "relaxed," or even asleep. When the sound stops they miss it. Although it sounds nutty, it's true.

Ham and eggs still cost 75 cents in Lanark

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Writer

LANARK, Ill. (AP) — Nearly everyone in this northwestern Illinois farm country knows 86-year-old Bertha Garman. She runs a place you can get ham and eggs for 75 cents.

She also bakes delicious apple, blueberry and peach pies for 45 cents a big slice over the counter.

Bertha bakes, operates her small restaurant, sells groceries and pumps gasoline. She is grass roots of America all wrapped up in a bright bundle.

She has been at her little place down the road at an intersection for 35 years. Only now does she realize those food price signs on the wall must be changed to keep up with the times. Despite her comparatively low prices, she has only a trickle of customers. But since she has been slowed down by a knee misery she prefers it that way.

"I haven't paid much attention to the prices for a couple of years but the other day I paid $2 a pound for ham," she said. "So I'm going to have to get at least 85 cents for ham and eggs."

Bertha's business mainly is with acquaintances in the area who drop in to chat or to buy a few things. She sells only 500 gallons of gasoline a week from her one workable pump.

Prices of snuff and chewing tobacco are posted on the wall along with other items like a plate of pork and beans for 20 cents. And there is a big framed color picture of a herd of cattle with a mountain background, and a plaque reading: "Be Strong In The Lord."

Every Sunday Bertha goes to the United Methodist Church in the nearby hamlet of Brookville.

"I keep this place only because I want to keep active," says Bertha, widowed for 14 years. "My only daughter wants me to come live with her family, but no, I prefer it here. Somebody is always dropping in and a lot of kids come in after school. I like their company. If I break even with what I sell, I'm satisfied."

Bertha is such a kindly type that she carries some customers on credit.

"I know who I'm dealing with and when some of them get too high on my books I call up and tell them to come in and pay me something," she said. "Only once was I taken. A man skipped out owing me $57."

Bertha, who was born in the area, says she is concerned about wickedness in the world today.

"I think our country is in bad shape when our President has to be surrounded by guards and has to wear a bulletproof vest for protection," she said. "People are getting too far away from God. No one ever has tried to rob me. But things are getting so wicked you have to be a little afraid when a stranger comes in."

American Legion Auxiliary

The American Legion Auxiliary will meet Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Dixon American Legion Hall. Plans will be made for open house in the club rooms on Veterans Day the 11th.

Membership chairman Mrs. Clarence Bohlken will have charge of the program.

Storage important for meat savings

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Today's inflationary prices for meat make it necessary to use every last scrap. But the meat must stay fresh. How to keep it that way requires a bit of expert thinking and planning in your kitchen.

First, it requires a good refrigerator. The September issue of "Consumer Reports" has a study made of several types of refrigerators. It states in part:

"Assuming you need a 17-to-20-cubic-foot refrigerator-freezer, your first decision will be to choose between a top-freezer or a side-by-side model. Although the side-by-side refrigerators offer larger, more convenient freezer space, the top-freezer models usually cost less to buy and run, need fewer repairs and take up a lot less room in the kitchen.

"(All units tested keep food cold satisfactorily). You may find that you are better off considering a low-rated model that satisfied these requirements. In making a choice, price-shop carefully. Our shoppers who checked prices in 12 metropolitan areas were quoted a wide range of prices."

"Consumer Reports" sums up its advice: "Whichever type you choose, you'll want a refrigerator that can keep food at suitable temperatures—one with specifications and features that suit your individual needs—and a refrigerator that's relatively inexpensive to operate."

Keep meat cold before and after it is purchased. Meat should be the last item selected at the supermarket and taken home immediately and refrigerated.

Woodlawn boy, 4, given backhoe for birthday by his grandfather

WOODLAWN, Ill. (AP) — Four-year-old Jeremy Shroyer's mom told his doting grandfather the boy already had too many toys, trucks, shovels and tractors and not to buy him more for his birthday.

So grandpa Joe Boyle, a construction contractor, got him a one-ton backhoe instead.

"Oh, he's always been machinery happy," Boyle, 55, said in an interview Wednesday, the youngster's birthday.

When Jeremy was six months old Boyle took the boy, his only grandchild, on a tractor. At nine months he was aboard a crawler. And before he was two grandfather let him take the wheel of a combine.

Jeremy loved them all.

"I figured the crawler would scare him to death," Boyle said. "It didn't. He just laughed and laughed."

Until Boyle's daughter, Patty, 25, laid down the law he supplied Jeremy with miniature heavy equipment to his heart's content. It was only a matter of time until he figured out a way to get around the decree.

"I had an old piece of farm machinery that I wanted to get rid of so I traded it for this backhoe and gave the backhoe to the boy," Boyle said. They took delivery about three weeks ago.

"He started running it just like he knew what he was doing," grandfather said. "He does pretty good with it for a little kid." It didn't take long for Jeremy to master the shovel up front. And with a little help he caught on to operation of the six levers controlling the hoe in back.

"We played with him and showed him how it worked," Boyle, who lives in nearby Mount Vernon, said. "He still gets a little mixed up on it but he does pretty good. He has a big time on it."

Fortunately Jeremy's father, Dennis, 25, owns a farm near Woodlawn and Jeremy can't do much damage if something goes wrong.

His mother said in a telephone interview that he's very careful anyway. He climbs aboard only with a safety hat on and operates his tremendous toy only under adult supervision. It's equipped with a kill switch for immediate shutoff in case of emergency.

"He can use the blade and dig a hole and everything," Mrs. Shroyer said. "He's pretty grown up about it. He just accepts it as his own backhoe."

There are a couple of possible problems.

First: What can the other set of grandparents buy him? "His other grandfather works for the Mount Vernon Register-News," Boyle said. "I guess he'll have to buy him a printing press."

Second: The danger to the family farm. "His parents have 40 acres," Boyle said. "I figure come spring he'll have it all dug up."

For all his bravery with the backhoe he wouldn't speak on the telephone—so Jeremy's thoughts on the subject remain his own.

MT. MORRIS — Church Women United of Mt. Morris will celebrate World Community Day on Friday, at 1:30 p.m., at the Trinity Lutheran Church Fellowship Hall. On this Day thousands of church women will gather in their local communities to commit themselves to work toward a global society in which all persons have the opportunity to realize their aspirations in "One Community Under God."

A year ago, women from every state and many nations came together in the triennial Ecumenical Assembly of Church Women United to consider the enormous problems of today's world, to identify the barriers which prevent a majority of the earth's people from living freely and fully, and to rededicate themselves, as a body, to work for a global society based on human values instead of economic ambition. They realized that today's human society is inseparably interwoven and that the massive problems of the world—hunger, poverty, war, the depletion and misuse of natural resources and sources of energy, the destruction of the environment, and the deprivation of human rights — can best be approached as problems confronting the entire global village.

The dream of one community is not new for Church Women United. The goal of building a world community which lives in peace was one of the cornerstones of this movement when it began. In 1941, during the week of Pearl Harbor, when the constituting convention of the United Council of Church Women met in Atlantic City, one of its first acts was to inaugurate a day of peace. Every year since then, church women have celebrated World Community Day on the first Friday in November to emphasize corporate action for justice and peace.

World Community Day is more than just one day of special emphasis for Church Women United. In anticipation of the 1975 Celebration, task forces will be formed in local units to work on action programs focusing in concrete world problems such as hunger. In the context of international implications, personal and material commitments will be advocated to bring about a more equitable distribution of food to the whole family.

Nationwide offerings received on World Community Day go into an Intercontinental Mission fund which enables Church Women United to express commitment to be caring and sharing members of the one community under God which they envision. Some of the current programs receiving grants which will help build a better tomorrow for children are: Assistance in the day-to-day operations of a health center in Guyana; a creative arts and recreation program for children and youth in a family center in Chicago; a day care center on the Blackfeet Indian Reservation in Montana; a nursery which provides a halfway house for adoption of Vietnamese orphans; Temporary shelters to serve as school rooms for children in a squatter area on the outskirts of an Asian city.

Annual grants through approved agencies are also made for programs such as: Higher education for women in overseas Christian colleges; education for minority women in new careers and for American Indian youth; preparation and distribution of Christian literature for women and children in Asia, Africa, and Latin America; ministries among migrant farm workers; support for the Christian ministry in national parks.

Through the purchase of $3 gift certificates church women respond with material aid to human beings who are in need of immediate relief from the ravages of war, famine, poverty, and natural disasters. They also assist in rehabilitation and reconciliation programs in war-torn areas, provide seed money and training for self-help projects and give timely help "Where most needed" in response to emerging opportunities.

FBI gym opened to women

WASHINGTON (AP) — The gymnasium in the basement of the Justice Department building was once an all-male sanctuary where J. Edgar Hoover's G-men built their muscles. Now it is being thrown open to the Justice Department's flabby set — male and female alike.

The department's administrative division inherited the gymnasium when the FBI moved into new headquarters across the street. The FBI has its own new gym there.

Traditionally, the old gym was open only to FBI agents, though some department VIPs were admitted in recent years. Under pressure from women employees in the department, the gym has been open to a few women for about an hour a week during the past year.

But now, department officials have given women equal time.

Men have the gym Monday, Friday and Wednesday mornings; women on Tuesday, Thursday and Wednesday afternoons.

Larry Bogatz, an official involved in the gym operation, said the department plans to add the activities and equipment necessary for sedentary lawyers and clerks to keep in better physical condition.

"We will have people doing things that will improve their cardiovascular system, a program directed toward occupational health," he said.

That requires equipment and a regimen somewhat different than the G-men favored to build their strength, he added.

The conditioning program still is in the planning stages. But in the meantime the Justice Department has recruited two gym attendants to conduct jogging and exercise classes.

Employees participate voluntarily during lunch breaks, before work or during other periods when they can arrange to leave their offices.

Bogatz said it probably will cost the government about $7,000 for a five-month interim operation before the new gym program gets into full swing.

Interview with unusual candidate

Dr. Traina running for governor

By ROBERT H. NELLIS

Over the years of interviewing persons running for public office, I have never experienced a candidate quite like Dr. Vincenzo L. Traina, a Rochelle physician who lives near Chana, who is an announced independent write-in candidate for governor of this state.

He says he does not expect to win, that he will accept no campaign contributions, that he will not seek any organizational support, that he will spend $10,000 of his personal funds to run for the office and that he is doing it to give him a chance to share some of his ideas with more people.

Adamantly against public corruption, which he says "has become a way of life in American politics," he declares he would go to jail voluntarily and let all his assets be confiscated should he be proved guilty of malfeasance while in office.

A brochure the Ogle County general practitioner hands out states he is "a conservative with compassion and a liberal with prudence."

Dr. Traina has an 11-point platform: He calls for allocation of a certain percentage of farm production, at a reasonable price for domestic production, and exportation of all food stuffs harvested after meeting the domestic quotas.

Dr. Traina believes this will provide a means for increasing farm exports without causing higher food prices for consumers.

The doctor from Rochelle, who is a native of Italy and received medical training there and served his internship resident in the United States, asserts stiff sentences should be handed out to convicted drug pushers and that drug addicts should be identified and registered, similar to the British program.

Drugs daily would be given to all registered addicts by authorities, which Dr. Traina observes will enable those persons to live normally. He estimated the average daily heroin cost on the street for an addict is $200 and suggests if this were administered through government authorities the cost would drop to about 8 cents per day.

The physician said heroin does not have a debilitating effect on the body and the only problem is to transfer addicts' supplies from organized crime drug pushers to legalized governmental outlets.

This will drain the profit of organized crime and will relieve drug addicts from having to come up with $200 per day which inevitably leads them to commit crimes, and will give them an opportunity to live more or less normal lives, he says.

Civil War unit meets Wednesday

Members of the reactivated 75th Illinois Infantry will be meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Loveland Community Building. Election of officers for 1975 will be held along with discussion on uniform and equipment regulation.

Those interested or any wishing to become a member are welcome to attend.

A spin-off of this program which Dr. Traina sees is no new generations will become hooked on drugs because the delivery of them will no longer reap exorbitant profits.

Dr. Traina, who served in the United States Air Force as an Italian national and received his U.S. citizenship papers in Tokyo, declared "no one should receive anything for nothing," and endorses a plan for work programs to be performed by persons receiving public relief. "It will be better to pay them for doing something than to pay them for doing nothing," he continues.

The physician favors assisting persons in educational pursuits at any level, depending on their financial need and their demonstrated ability.

He wants to see what he calls, "freeing senior citizens from the tyranny of poverty and loneliness." Dr. Traina notes older persons live in their own homes until such time they may be transferred to a rest home. He notes they are usually advised to sell their homes and pay for the rest home care as long as funds hold out and then go on public welfare.

"I would rather say to the children of these elderly persons, the state will give you $50 per month if you will take the parent into your homes and care for them," suggests the candidate.

Dr. Traina comments this would not force the elderly individual into poverty and would not deprive them of companionship of families.

Other ideas the Ogle County doctor has include favoring raising the state inheritance taxes, should it become necessary to increase any taxes to balance the state's budget.

—Give now well paid political state jobs only to well-qualified individuals, "who would like to serve only out of prestige and dedication, not at taxpayers' cost."

—Guarantee to women their right to accept or to refuse motherhood.

—Achieve integration and communication without recourse to forced busing.

To vote for Dr. Traina persons will have to print his name and the office for which he is running and then draw a box in front of his name and make an X in the box.

He said he will continue to practice medicine should he be elected governor and all income from his practice while governor would be given to charity.

"It's time the voters of Illinois have a candidate who has freedom of action and choice rather than being a party machine candidate who owes favors to those who help him."

Joel C. Shomaker

STERLING — Joel Carl Shomaker, 66, 2215 Riverview Road, Rock Falls, died Monday at Community General Hospital.

One sister and one brother preceded him in death.

Graveside funeral services will be held Tuesday at 1:30 p.m.

Veto override issue dominates session

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Efforts to overturn Gov. Daniel Walker's education spending cuts are again expected to dominate activity as the General Assembly resumes its fall session today.

Walker cut $81 million in direct payments to schools and nearly $50 million in grants for special school programs from the $1.9 billion education budget sent to him last summer.

School teachers, administrators, labor groups and Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley have called for overrides of these cuts, while Walker has found support from the business-oriented state Chamber of Commerce.

He has warned that overrides of his budget cuts could force a state tax increase.

But those who support the overrides say local taxes will have to be increased if the cuts stand. They also say Walker can take steps to avoid a tax increase and give the schools more money.

The fight assumed significant political proportions two weeks ago when Daley made a rare appearance before the legislature to urge overrides of the school aid bills. But the mayor went home without a victory as the House fell three votes short. Another vote on that matter as well as on Walker's cut of $49.5 million in special grants are expected this week.

The House and Senate each plan to meet four days this week, and Thursday is the deadline for each chamber to consider the governor's veto actions on bills they originated.

If one chamber successfully overrides the governor or accepts his recommended changes in bills, the measure goes to the other house. The second chamber has until Nov. 21 to take similar action.

Those who back overrides of Walker's education cuts were heartened when a House committee rejected on Tuesday

Walker's plan to assist some 549 school districts that he says will get less state aid this year than last year because of the budget cut.

To soften the impact of the cuts, Walker had proposed a $22.7 million plan to guarantee that no district would receive less aid this year than they got in fiscal 1975.

The House Elementary and Secondary Education Committee voted 13 to 8, however, to defeat the plan. Several legislators criticized it as unduly favorable, to school districts that should have foreseen drops in state aid.

But Rep. Ben Polk, R-Moline, who voted against the plan, later filed motion to resurrect it. If the bill is not revived, Daley loyalists say they will get added support from downstate lawmakers on the attempt to override Walker's full budget cuts.

Other veto overrides that may be considered include a measure affecting the political parties' selection of delegates for presidential nominating conventions; a bill to require consent of the spouse or parents before an abortion can be performed; legislation affecting administration of the state fair, and a bill to allow the state comptroller to challenge spending decisions before money is obligated.

Off-Year Elections

Campaign signs have sprouted on many lawns this fall as several major American cities prepare to hold mayoral elections tomorrow. The City of Brotherly Love is one of the 89 cities of over 100,000 population that are scheduled to conduct elections in 1975. Its incumbent mayor, Frank Rizzo — once known as the "toughest cop in America" — is seeking a second term against two challengers. Rizzo was elected after resigning as police commissioner to run primary and general election campaigns on the law-and-order issue. He has served four years as mayor of the city that was the nation's capital during most of the American Revolution.

Pay for what you use phone bills are being tested

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — With electricity, gas, and water, you pay for what you use. Why not the telephone?

General Telephone Co., a Bloomington-based utility, is conducting an experiment in three central Illinois towns to determine how customers would like the idea and whether their calling patterns would change.

Starting with the October bill, business and residential telephone customers in Jacksonville, Clinton and Tuscola received their regular bill plus a statement of what their bill would be under a cost by usage system.

The customers pay only the regular bill but will have an idea of whether their monthly telephone expense would go up or down if the new billing system ever were implemented. Officials say early indications are that about half would go each way.

"We've never been able to accumulate this kind of data before," said C. Sumpter Logan, vice president for public affairs. "This is a rather pure, empirical study. We don't know what we will find out."

Logan said even under the new system, each customer would be charged a flat fee even if no outgoing calls were made. However, that flat fee would be about 40 per cent of the current monthly charge and could result in substantial savings for users who make few calls.

"This would provide low-cost service for fixed and low-income persons," Logan said.

In Jacksonville, if the new billing system were implemented, private line residential users would pay $3.15 a month plus two cents per call and one cent per minute. The current monthly charge in that city is $7.95.

In Tuscola and Clinton, where the current monthly rates are $5.90 and 6.20 respectively, the user would pay $2.50 per month plus 1½ cents per minute under the new system. There would be no per-call charge.

Logan said electronic equipment has been installed at the switching office to measure the number and length of outgoing calls. The number of calls received by a customer would not affect the bill.

The company plans to give customers in the three cities the additional billing information for four to eight months before deciding whether to go to the new system.

The costs under the new system were set to provide no additional revenue for the company, Logan said, but any change would still require approval by the Illinois Commerce Commission.

He said he doesn't know how customers will react to the idea of paying for their telephone service based on use.

"As a customer I may feel that I could lose control of my bill, as well as have the potential for saving money," he said. Logan told of one customer whose October bill under the new system would have been more than $150, based on the number and length of outgoing calls.

"We figured that out to be something like five and a half hours a day, seven days a week, on the telephone," Logan said.

evening prior to the installation of Smith as head of the church.

The James Blair residence on River View Road was another spot in historical importance. The Blairs were a large family and settled here in 1837. Blair was a leader in the church and was reportedly installed as a director at the April 1860 meeting.

After crossing the Rockford bridge, where it was pointed out where the old mills were located and the site of the Jacob Doan's home (also a leader of the early church), the tour continued on Mormon Road past the old cemetery, where many of the early church families are buried.

At Binghampton the group heard about the early settlers of this area and positions of the old mills and factories were noted. It was disclosed Asa Searls, one of the early settlers here, knew Joseph Smith Sr. in Binghampton, New York.

On Wasson Road a stop was made at the area where the Ben Wasson home stood. Mrs. Wasson was a sister-in-law of Joseph Smith and it was while he was having dinner with the Wasson family that two agents, one from Missouri and one from Hancock County, got into the home by declaring themselves to be members of the church, then arrested Smith. He was taken to county jail at Dixon, and Father John Dixon decided that the agents acted illegally in arresting Smith as they had no warrant. The prisoner was released and left the county.

History records many hostilities toward members of the early church and members gradually left Amboy. Although some of the descendants of the early families still live here, there has been no active branch of the church for many years.

RLDS group reviews church history in Amboy

AMBOY—Saturday was a day of reminiscing and reviewing of history for 34 representatives of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints of the Chicago District who came to Amboy to visit local points of historical significance to the church.

The group, under the direction of A. Stanley Zahniser, Chicago district president of Matteson, and Mrs. Ruth Wildermuth, district historian of Plano, traveled from Plano to Amboy by chartered bus. They assembled at the depot museum where they were met by John Faivre and Gary Carlson, who served as local tour guides. Faivre is a member of the State Historical Sites Committee, and a local history buff. Carlson is a social studies teacher at Amboy High School and has done considerable research on local history.

Faivre reviewed how the research was carried out to determine the place and dates of the Mormon convention held here in 1860.

The first visit was to the historical marker on a building across the street from the depot, where Joseph Smith III was installed as president-prophet of the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints on April 6, 1860.

Traveling west to Rockford a stop was made at the site of the John Hook residence, where the local church was organized in about 1839. William Anderson was the first minister and the congregation grew to about 60 members. Carlson explained how the members had planned to build a temple nearby and pointed out the large limestone rock which was to have been the cornerstone of the building.

The next point of interest was a stop at the Royal Stone residence (now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Rosado, Mrs. Rosado being a great-granddaughter of the Stones). It was in this home that a prayer meeting was held the

ILEC grants announced

The Northwest Illinois Criminal Justice Commission has been awarded grant funds by the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission for two regional projects.

According to Eugene C. Smith, regional director, Dixon, the commission received $35,611 for regional planning and $22,110 for a model evaluation program.

The Regional planning grant will allow the Commission to provide continued planning services, grant application development review and technical services to criminal justice agencies in Carroll, DeKalb, Jo Daviess, Lee, Ogle, Stephenson and Whiteside Counties.

Smith noted that a total of $453,000 in grant funds has been awarded to criminal justice agencies in the seven counties by the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission during the past year.

The goal of the model evaluation program is to determine whether projects funded in the Region have achieved their objectives in a cost-effective manner and to assess their impact on the reduction of crime and delinquency and improvement of the criminal justice system.

California upsets USC 28-14

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

That given Saturday on which any college football team can beat any other team almost arrived in style over the weekend, but the only places it really made a full-scale appearance was the California towns of Berkeley and Los Angeles.

In Berkeley, the California Golden Bears knocked off the previously unbeaten fourth-ranked Southern Cal Trojans 28-14, one day after Coach John McKay made it official that he would leave USC at the end of the season for the new Tampa Bay Buccaneers of the National Football League.

"I don't think the coaching announcement was that much of a distraction," said McKay, who may be heading for Tampa sooner than he thought if Southern Cal doesn't make it to the Rose Bowl. "We just refused to tackle."

But Cal's Mike White thought the announcement "must have had some negative effect. I imagine it had people thinking about something else."

Down in L.A., Washington stunned 13th-ranked UCLA 17-13 and threw the Pacific-8 race into a turmoil — Cal is 4-1 with Southern Cal, UCLA, Washington and Stanford, a 28-21 winner over Oregon State, all 3-1.

That given Saturday almost dawned in Columbus, Ohio, where the Ohio State Buckeyes, No. 1 in The Associated Press ratings, blew most of a 17-0 halftime lead before subduing Indiana 24-14.

Runner-up Oklahoma cruised past Oklahoma State 27-7 and remained deadlocked for the Big Eight lead with third-ranked Nebraska, a 30-7 winner over No. 12 Missouri. Fifth-ranked Texas A&M was idle, its scheduled game with Arkansas having long ago been switched to Dec. 6 for national television purposes.

That given Saturday almost showed up at Jackson, Miss., where sixth-ranked Alabama had to come from behind in the third period on Tyrone King's 26-yard interception to turn back Mississippi State 21-10. And it nearly was in evidence at Ann Arbor, Mich., where seventh-ranked Michigan needed Gordon Bell's tie-breaking 23-yard run with just under seven minutes left to stave off Minnesota 28-21 and remain tied with Ohio State atop the Big Ten.

Dallas, too, almost had that given Saturday as No. 8 Texas withstood an early 7-0 deficit and a 202-yard rushing performance by Southern Methodist's Wayne Morris and beat the Mustangs 30-22. There also was a struggle at College Park, Md., where ninth-ranked Penn State edged No. 14 Maryland 15-13 on a 40-yard fourth quarter field goal by Chris Bahr, a professional soccer player.

Elsewhere, 10th-ranked Arizona State intercepted nine passes — Mike Haynes returned one 51 yards for a score — and trounced Utah 40-14. No. 11 Florida's Jimmy DuBos rushed for 149 yards and Jimmy Fisher threw two touchdown passes as the Gators whipped Auburn 31-14 and stayed in a tie with Alabama for the Southeastern Conference lead.

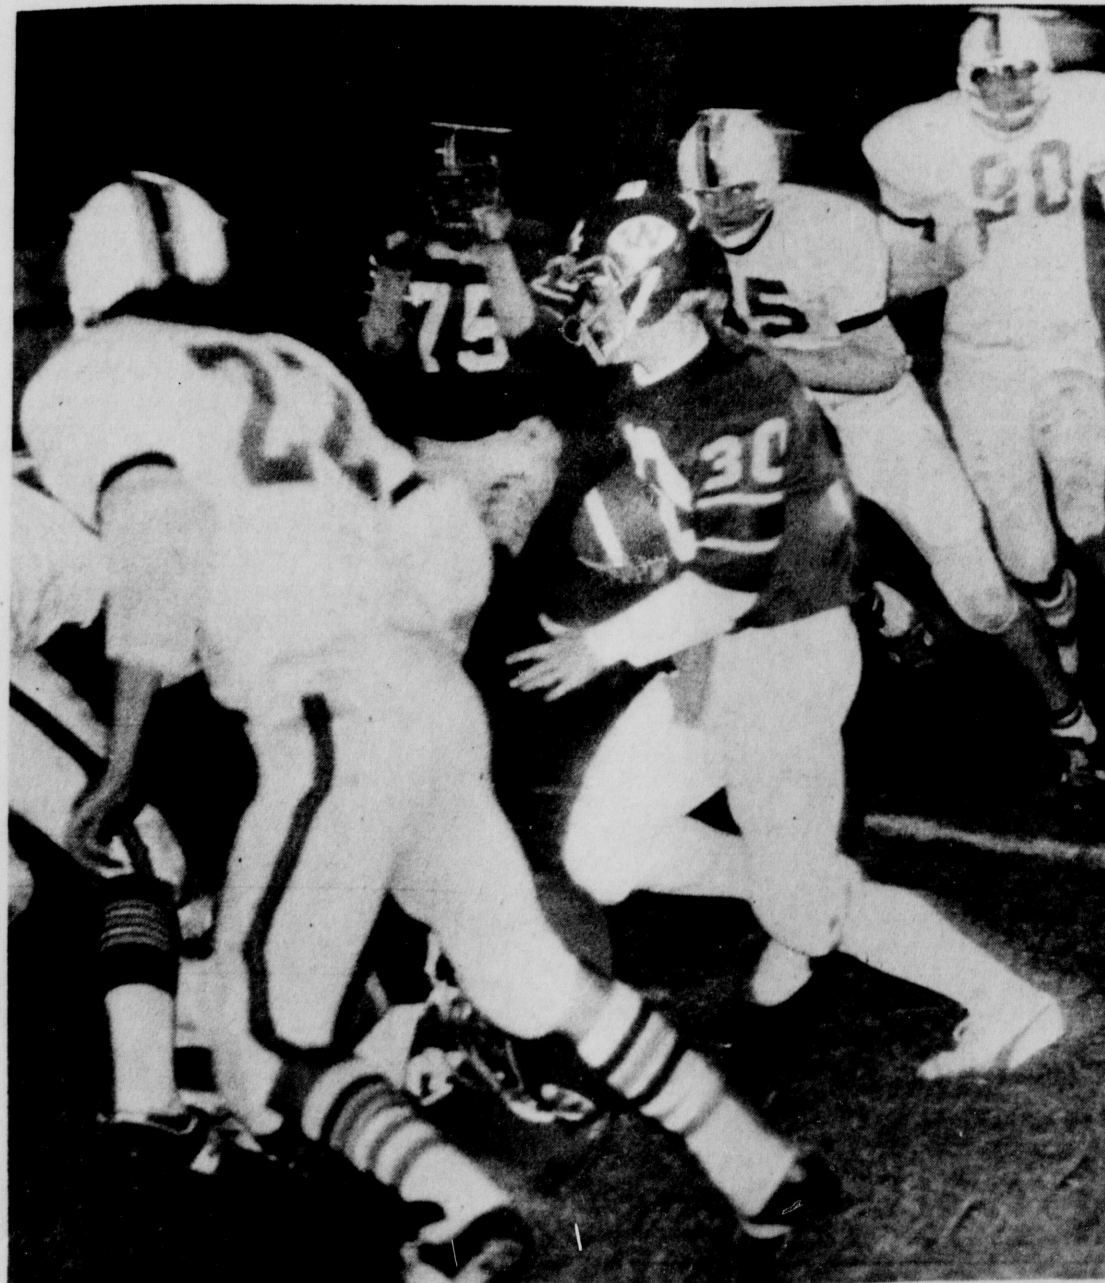

No. 15 Notre Dame, held to six first downs and 200 yards total offense, used Ross Browner's blocked punt and ensuing 27-yard return plus tackle Jeff Weston's 53-yard interception return to defeat Navy 31-10. No. 16 Colorado, down 21-7 at the half, used two 99-yard drives to overtake Iowa State 28-27.

Arizona's "T" Bell caught two touchdown passes from Bruce Hill and set up two others with long kickoff returns as the 17th-ranked Wildcats trimmed Brigham Young 36-20. Sharpshooting Craig Penrose completed 25 of 31 passes for 280 yards and three touchdowns to lead 18th-ranked San Diego State past Pacific 31-13.

And Miami of Ohio, tied with Oklahoma State for the No. 19 spot, downed Toledo 35-21 as Sherman Smith scored three times. The Redskins thus clinched a tie for their third consecutive Mid-American Conference crown.

California's upset of Southern Cal was paced by Joe Roth, who passed for 244 yards, including touchdown tosses to Wesley Walker and George Freitas; Chuck Muncie, who rushed for 143 yards, and Steve Rivera, who caught nine passes for 131.

Penalties are key plays

Redskins, Steelers win

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Sometimes there's more to a penalty than just 15 yards. Sometimes it's the difference between winning and losing.

In Washington, it was a 15-yarder slapped on Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach for throwing a punch in frustration. "That's the thing that gave us the impetus," Washington quarterback Billy Kilmer said. "Roger just lost his cool."

And in the heat of sudden-death overtime, Staubach and the Cowboys lost the game, too. Kilmer and the Redskins, aroused by the incident and buoyed by the 15 yards it gave them, marched relentlessly to the Dallas goal line. Then, with 6:34 gone in the extra period, Kilmer himself banged over for the touchdown that gave Washington a 30-24 victory.

In Cincinnati, a desperate Ken Anderson was tearing apart the Pittsburgh defense with his passes, trying to bring the Bengals back from a 23-3 deficit which he had slashed to 23-17.

But with the Bengals on the Pittsburgh 14-yard line and oh, so close to taking the lead with less than five minutes to play, a holding penalty on Cincinnati tight end Bob Trumpy moved the Bengals back to the 35.

One play later, Mike Wagner made his second interception of the game and returned it 65 yards to Cincinnati's 18. That set up another Pittsburgh touchdown and the Steelers prevailed 30-24.

Bengals' Coach Paul Brown saw that holding call as the game's critical play. "There wasn't much difference between the champs and the chumps," he said, "except for that 15-yard penalty."

Redskins 30, Cowboys 24
Dallas lost its chance to kayo Washington when Toni Fritsch missed a 38-yard field goal with 14 seconds to go in regulation play. But the Cowboys seemed ready to overcome that problem when Staubach began passing them into Redskins' territory.

Then came his fatal mistake — the one that dropped Dallas into a three-way tie with the 'Skins and Cardinals in the National Conference East.

He threw a pass just as linebacker Chris Hanburger belted him — and the wobbly ball was picked off by Ken Houston and returned to midfield. Staubach, angered by his error, threw a punch at cornerback Pat Fischer during the runback.

And with the penalty, Washington had the ball at the Dallas 35 instead of at midfield. From there, it was academic. "I just did a stupid thing," Staubach admitted. "The play was over."

Steelers 30, Bengals 24

"This game gave us a big lift," Steelers quarterback Terry Bradshaw said after he passed to Lynn Swann for touchdowns of 37 and 25 yards, then piled in from the one for what proved to be the deciding touchdown.

Cardinals 24, Patriots 17

Terry Metcalf scored on runs of one and seven yards from scrimmage and on a 69-yard sprint with a punt to carry the Cards past New England. Mel Gray's punt returns of 19 and 27 yards set up Metcalf's two short scoring bursts.

Oilers 17, Chiefs 13

Quarterback Dan Pastorini and wide receiver Ken Burrough hooked up on touchdown pass plays of 71 and 57 yards — but it was Bob Atkins, Houston's second-string free safety, who made the biggest play.

He picked off a Mike Livingston pass at the Houston four-yard line with less than five minutes to play and returned it 70 yards to the Kansas City 26, preserving the triumph.

Vikings 28, Packers 17

Minnesota, trailing 17-14 on two Packer touchdowns by reserve running back Barty Smith, rallied to win on Fran Tarkenton's four-quarter touchdown passes of 19 yards to John Gilliam and 10 to Chuck Foreman.

Bills 24, Jets 23

With a 23-17 lead, about five minutes to play and a fourth-and-one on the Buffalo 20-yard line, New York Coach Charley Winner decided to go for the yard instead of the field goal. It didn't work.

The Bills stopped John Riggins at the line, then took over — and less than two minutes later, Joe Ferguson clicked with O.J. Simpson on a 64-yard touchdown pass for the victory.

Raiders 42, Broncos 17

Denver had a 10-7 edge at the half, but was in trouble the rest of the way. Ken Stabler passed for two touchdowns in the third quarter and Pete Banaszak ran for two more in the fourth.

Saints 23, Falcons 7

Archie Manning heaved a 71-yard touchdown pass to Larry Burton to help the Saints give Ernie Hefferle, their new head coach, a victory in his debut against the Falcons.

Lions 28, 49ers 17

Joe Reed, subbing for injured Greg Landry and Bill Munson, threw two touchdown passes in the third period to carry the Lions past his former San Francisco teammates.

Colts 21, Browns 7

Bert Jones threw two touchdown passes to lead Baltimore's offense and linebacker Stan White intercepted two passes, recorded three quarterback sacks and had 11 individual tackles to slam the door on Cleveland's offense, keeping the Browns winless.

Giants 35, Chargers 24

Craig Morton passed for two touchdowns and Joe Dawkins ran for two in the Giants' Saturday victory that handed the Chargers their seventh loss without a victory.

Bob Griese plays it cool

CHICAGO (AP) — Bob Griese says that after nine years as a National Football League quarterback he doesn't need to work up a full head of enthusiasm to win games.

"We don't force anything around here," Griese said Sunday after throwing for three touchdowns and leading Miami to a 46-13 victory over the hapless Chicago Bears. "If the enthusiasm comes, that's fine. But we've been getting the job done without it."

In his cool, workmanlike manner, Griese hit on 12 of 19 passes for 288 yards, the third best performance of his career. He was even nonchalant as he described a spectacular 79-yard scoring pass play to Nat Moore as "just a play action fake. We wanted to get one of our receivers behind them."

"I just do whatever it takes to get the job done," Griese said. "I thought the protection was great. Bob Kuechenberg did a great job on Wally Chambers."

Big Wally, leading Bear defensemen with 11 sacks, didn't even get a thread from Griese's shirttail as the Dolphins quarterback unloaded one scoring pass after another. Besides the 79-yarder that won Moore the game ball, there were touchdown completions of 20 yards to Norm Bulaich and 58 yards to Freddy Solomon.

Miami, now 6-1, also scored on a one-yard plunge by Benny Malone in the first period, a 29-yard Earl Morrall pass to Howard Twilley in the fourth, three Garo Yepremian field goals and a sack of Bears, quarterback Gary Huff by Don Reese for a safety.

The Bears, who fell to 1-6, scored on a four-yard run by rookie Walter Payton in the third period and two Bob Thomas field goals.

Kuechenberg, who handled the hard-charging Chambers as well as any lineman this season, said his method was "just to stay with him and dog him all day long."

"As long as he's beating on my head and not the quarterback, that's all right," Kuechenberg declared.

"One thing about blocking against a superstar," he added, "they're always watching you."

Dolphins Coach Don Shula heaped praise on his offensive standouts.

"It must have been one of Griese's better games — he has a super day," Shula said.

"He kept coming up with the big play. Kuechenberg really got himself up for this game."

Even Bears quarterback Gary Huff, who had a pretty fair day in making 16 of 25 attempts for 166 yards, expressed admiration for Griese.

"I was very impressed with him — he did a great job," said Huff, glum over the Bears' losing ways despite a massive personnel change this year. "We just haven't jelled yet."

Coach Jack Pardee paid tribute to Miami — "they simply have good personnel" — but did not spare his Bears. "We spent part of the time running backwards," Pardee said. "If you cannot block the opponent in three downs, you're not going to move."

"We've got to get back to rushing the passer," Pardee added.

No more days off for Buckeyes

Minnesota.

Wisconsin dashed Illinois' Rose Bowl hopes 18-9. Purdue handed once high regarded Michigan State its fourth Big Ten reversal 20-10, and Iowa struck back in the final 40 seconds to upend Northwestern 24-21.

The splendid and totally unexpected performances by Indiana and Minnesota against top-heavy odds might be giving other teams in the Big Ten ideas as to the invincibility of the top two.

Illinois Coach Bob Blackman, finding defeat hard to swallow at Wisconsin, said, "When you lose a game like this it really hurts. But we've got a way for getting rid of that hurt — beating the nation's No. 1 team next week."

Illinois, now reduced to 3-2 in the Big Ten and tied for third place with Wisconsin, takes on Ohio State at Champaign Saturday. Michigan will host Purdue, while Michigan State goes to Indiana, Northwestern to Minnesota, and Wisconsin to Iowa.

"Indiana undoubtedly played its best game of the year," said Hayes. "We sure did not play ours. We were just flat."

So flat that Ohio State held a narrow 17-14 lead in the fourth quarter when Bruce Ruhl intercepted a Terry Jones' pass to set up a clinching touchdown by Pete Johnson.

Indiana Coach Lee Corso defended the passing gamble. "You have to do it. The only way I thought about it was that it would be a touchdown. That's the only way you can beat these guys."

Rick Enis scored two touchdowns for Indiana and rushed for 148 yards. Archie Griffin gained 50 for the Buckeyes.

Michigan needed a 23-yard touchdown run by Gordon Bell in the fourth period to break a 21

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE F-413: Tony B., aged 35, was Program Chairman of his Advertising Club at Buffalo, N.Y.

Dr. Crane, he telephoned, "We'd like to have you address our organization at its next meeting."

"When I was in college, we used your textbook, So I'd like to have you expand some of the basic rules outlined in Chapters VII and VIII, dealing with the psychology of advertising and selling."

"And please give us that 'Motivation Test' as a 5-minute audience participation experiment, for the crowd will enjoy it."

Specificity

In that "Motivation Test by Print," are 15 pairs of book titles, from which the following are drawn:

—The Art of Courtship

—The Art of Kissing

Each of those titles ran for a full year in a national newspaper advertising campaign.

They both had the same amount of exposure before newspaper readers of leading papers coast to coast.

Which title do you think pulled the most orders?

Remember, no salesman called at your door to inject his magnetic personality or his persuasive sales talk.

All that the prospects ever saw were just the four words of one title; then the four of the other following year.

The first title pulled 17,500 orders via mail.

But the "Kissing" title attracted 60,500 orders! Why?

Because the "specific" apparently motivates us far more than the "general"!

Courtship is a general term that includes kissing, hugs, movies, dates, etc.

So specificity beats generality.

And that holds true, also, of such terms as "quality" or "service" for they are generic and relatively meaningless until broken down into their component elements.

One of my students couldn't sell his brand of catsup to a retailer when he argued that his catsup was of higher quality.

"Quality, quality, quality!" snorted the grocer. "What does that mean?"

So my student resorted to specificity and asked the grocer for a large white blotter.

Then he urged the grocer to ladle out one spoonful of the rival catsup from the grocer's shelf and place it on the blotter.

Next, he let the grocer help in the demonstration (audience participation!) by placing a spoonful from the salesman's brand of catsup and at the other end of the blotter.

"See which one produces the larger circle of water on the blotter," he directed.

"And also notice which leaves a bigger heap of tomato pulp."

The grocer noticed that the blotter had absorbed much less water and left more tomato pulp under my student's catsup.

"You win," the grocer conceded, "so I'll take a case of your catsup."

"Quality" is thus a generic word that has little persuasive power until it is broken down into specific examples.

Same is true of "service" or "economical" or "efficient."

Prospects react better when you offer them concrete examples, like the "Case Method" which I employ in this "Worry Clinic."

Christ's parables also offered specificity to demonstrate generic terms like brotherhood, as in the Good Samaritan Story.

So send for my booklet "The New Psychology of Advertising and Selling," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

What is BABY BEEF?

Baby Beef is also called calf, grass-fed, economy or western beef—but by any name—it is beef that is over 6 months old. Too old to be classified as veal—yet younger than the fully mature beef.

What does BABY BEEF look like?

Compare color and you'll see the difference between Baby Beef, veal and mature beef. Baby Beef is "deeper red," veal is a "rather pink" and mature beef is bright cherry red. Baby Beef cuts are smaller than mature beef and larger than veal.

Where is BABY BEEF available?

Mainly the Southwest, South and West—where Baby Beef is raised. However, your friendly Nationals occasionally receive a "while supplies last" shipment—a special budget treat for our shoppers.

How nutritious is BABY BEEF?

Just as nutritious as mature beef—with high quality protein, B-vitamins, iron, zinc and other minerals. There are fewer calories in Baby Beef because there is less fat!

How is BABY BEEF prepared?

Baby Beef can be cooked just like mature beef but there are these factors to consider: Baby Beef has very little marbling or fat covering so you may want to braise or add fat while cooking. Also, because Baby Beef is young it cooks faster—usually one-third to one-half the time of more mature beef. Because of the lack of fat a well-done cut of Baby Beef may be tough. We suggest cooking only to the medium stage of doneness.

Cook rib, tip and rump roasts in a slow oven to 150° on the meat thermometer. You can broil rib, porterhouse, T-bone and sirloin steaks. You may want to brush with butter or marinate before cooking. Arm and blade steaks and round steak are best if braised. Roast arm and blade roasts to the medium stage of doneness. To enhance the delicate flavor of Baby Beef, coat with a breading or seasoned flour mixture or serve with a sauce or gravy.

Domino theory getting test after fall of South Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — "You have a row of dominoes set up. You knock over the first one, and what will happen to the last one is the certainty that it will go over very quickly."

With these words 21 years ago, President Dwight D. Eisenhower outlined the "falling domino principle" to demonstrate the strategic importance of Indochina to the Western world.

Persuaded that Eisenhower was right, a succession of American presidents went to great lengths to assure that the domino scenario would not be played out.

Now, it has been exactly six months since the Communists moved into power in South Vietnam. That event brought an end to one of the most divisive episodes in American foreign policy history but it also marked the beginning of the central test of the domino theory.

As long as the American-backed government in Saigon was able to survive, the validity of the domino theory could not be proved. With Saigon's fall, would other neighboring countries follow suit "very quickly," as Eisenhower had predicted, or was the whole theory a pipedream?

In the six months since the National Liberation Front flag was hoisted for the first time at the presidential palace in Saigon, both hawks and doves can point to events in Indochina and elsewhere which suggest each was right all along.

But the consensus is that it is far too early to write the final chapter on the wisdom of American policy in Indochina.

The period between last April and June was one of tumultuous change in Indochina. Almost simultaneously with the collapse of the Saigon government was the victory of the Khmer Rouge movement in neighboring Cambodia. This was followed quickly by the Communist success in Laos. One U.S. official called this "dramatic evidence of the domino theory set in motion."

Elsewhere, the changes have been less startling. But there has been a perceptible decline in American influence in some areas.

Within five days after the fall of Saigon, Thailand, the western neighbor of Laos and Cambodia, insisted on and received assurances that all 16,000 U.S. servicemen would be out of the country by March 1976.

To the east, Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos began demanding an end to American jurisdiction over U.S. bases there. The Philippines, like Thailand, established relations with China.

To Thailand's south, Malaysia, anticipating an upsurge in rebel activity, is expanding its security forces and recently purchased 41,000 American M-16 rifles.

Most U.S. officials agree the key to Southeast Asia's future rests with Vietnam which, in practical terms, has become united under Hanoi's rule since the events of last April.

As these officials see it, Hanoi, with some $4 billion in abandoned U.S. weapons at its disposal, has the capacity to nourish insurgent movements elsewhere in Southeast Asia for years to come. But it is not clear yet whether Hanoi has such plans.

Thailand is the country most vulnerable to Hanoi-inspired insurgency, with Laos serving as a corridor of easy access for arms shipments Hanoi wishes to deliver to Thai rebels.

The smuggling of weapons to insurgents in the north and the northeast of Thailand has been going on for years but western observers say it is more open now than ever.

Officials here say Thailand may be more resilient to guerrilla activities than is widely believed. The nation never has been controlled by foreigners and, unlike Vietnam, rebel forces can't make headway by appealing to anti-colonialist instincts.

The future role of China and the Soviet Union in Southeast Asia is another question mark. Since April, there has been a sharpening of the Sino-Soviet conflict as both powers compete for influence in the area.

Curiously, this conflict may become a source of stability in Southeast Asia — and a barrier to fulfillment of the domino theory. There are signs that China sees the maintenance of the U.S. role in Southeast Asia as its best assurance against Soviet domination of the region.

DEPRESSION ART "FOUND" Public Offered U.S. Surplus 1937 Art Prints

WASHINGTON, D.C. (Special) — A series of rare coincidences has led to the historic discovery of several thousand sets of full color antique art prints that were "lost since 1937." They are now being offered to the American public.

ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

Back in 1937, immediately following the depression years, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and a select group of a dozen nationally prominent people formed a voluntary national committee for art appreciation to create an art program that would give the public a well-needed moral lift. It was the committee's decision to select the world's most famous paintings from the 16th, 17th, 18th, 19th and 20th centuries — the best paintings of Matisse, Van Gogh, Gainsborough, Picasso, Gauguin, Titian, etc., and to reproduce them in full color as perfectly as humanly possible and make them available to the public at a price within the reach of nearly everyone.

ABANDONED IN 1937

For some unknown reason, after a quantity of these beautiful reproductions were made, the entire project was abandoned and this collection of perfect reproductions was stored in a Brooklyn warehouse, where they remained undisturbed since 1937.

The lost collection was "rediscovered" and leading lithographers and art critics agree that the subject matter and quality of detail and color reproduction is incredibly accurate. Over $100,000.00 had been spent to make finely engraved glass printing plates.

These authentic original 1937 prints are literally collectors' items and have been appraised by a member of The Antique Appraisal Assoc. of America, Inc. at $7.00 each print. Once they have been sold, there will be no more available. A truly excellent art "investment" that makes a fabulous gift.

AVAILABLE TO PUBLIC

Now, after 38 years these full color 11"x14" (ave. size) prints are finally available to the public at $12.95 for a collection of 12 prints. Send cash, check or money order to: U.S. Art Surplus, Dept. B2, 4816 MacArthur Blvd. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20007. Fully GUARANTEED. Certificate of authenticity given with each set. Mastercharge and BankAmericard OK (give card number and expiration date). Adv.

For Tuesday, Nov. 4, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your thoughtfulness today may not reap an immediate reward, but it will not be forgotten quickly. You've won a loyal ally.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) One who is very fond of you now needs your moral support. Let her know you'll stand behind her decisions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In unity there is strength today. Work closely with those who share a kinship of interests. Mutual benefits will result.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's to your advantage to conduct important business later in the day. At that time you tend to view things more prudently.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If your priorities are met in proper order today the results will be fruitful. Handle domestic and financial situations first.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's a good day to take care of a serious matter you've been postponing. When dealing with the party concerned be friendly, but firm.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Contact one who is obligated to you financially today to see if some type of repayment plan can be worked out.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Follow through on today's developments. They'll lead to benefits for you career- and moneywise. Don't be afraid of extra responsibility.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) As of today you may begin to realize that a situation you're involved in has taken more advantage of you than you've taken advantage of.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're a bit reluctant to ask another for something that's owed you. Talk it over now. It won't jeopardize the relationship.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Others will be playing a bigger hand today than you'll be aware of in a matter that's important to you. Fortunately, it's in your favor.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Time is your ally today. Be persistent. Don't give up if you suffer a minor setback. On the second try, you'll make it.

Your Birthday
Nov. 4, 1975

You're likely to take on greater responsibilities this coming year than you have for some time. Though tasks may be difficult, the returns will be commensurate.

The Doctor Says:

Hot flashes are part of menopause

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB—Will you explain what is happening to a woman's body when she has a "hot flash"? Is there anything that can be done to help prevent them besides taking some kind of medicine, such as a vitamin or some special food?

DEAR READER—In middle-aged women the most common cause of hot flashes is decreased production of estrogen along with the menopause. When hot flashes are really part of the menopause related to low hormone levels, the one thing that will relieve them is giving the woman some replacement female hormone. It is one of the few symptoms of the menopause that responds immediately and dramatically to hormone replacement. Of course, if a hot flash is from some other cause or the woman has normal hormone levels, then giving more hormones will not help.

Taking vitamins or special foods won't help at all. There is a widespread cult that erroneously believes all maladies can be cured by vitamins. They can't, and such an attitude often prevents a person from being treated properly, sometimes for serious life-threatening diseases. That is the biggest harm of all caused by the misinformation available about vitamins.

The hot flash is caused by improper function of your body thermostat. You have a center in the brain that controls all your body heat and cooling mechanisms. When it gets the signal that your body needs to be cooled, it sets off reflex actions to open up all your small capillaries in your skin, this is the flush you see. You can also see the flush when a person gets too hot from any cause. The hot blood is brought to the surface of the skin to be cooled and returns to cool your body. At the same time reflex mechanisms set off your sweating mechanism. The evaporation of sweat induces evaporative cooling at the skin.

When the body temperature falls to normal the small blood vessels close down, the flush disappears and the sweating is stopped. If you get too cool the center will set off shivering. The mechanical action of shivering generates heat.

Your body thermostat can be affected by hot spicy foods. You may know some people who will sweat when they eat such foods and that is the reason. The center is also near the master hormone gland for the body. Its functions are affected by the decreased function of the ovaries. In some way this causes the thermostat to function erratically during this phase of a woman's life. Usually the phase doesn't last too long, and eventually a woman's system will readjust. Whether you should have female hormones depends on many factors.

There is a lot more to managing the menopause period than just taking hormones. A woman needs to take special care to avoid obesity. Lifestyles and eating habits are more important here. A lot of women tend to lose muscle mass about this phase of life and that in turn means getting fat, even though you are still eating the same amount as always. Muscle mass and physical activity (including the type) are just as important as your diet in preventing obesity. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)
